Most parents now are both employed, leaving the kids to the care of the grandparents or nannies. There is no problem with this case, but most of the time, kids are no longer that close to their parents which could lead to some relationship gap among them. Food that are prepared at home are still the best to eat when it comes to cleanliness, safety, taste and cost. If you are a mom who is a good cook, grab the opportunity. Prepare a menu, but it must be in variants of the most desired home-made food. You may conduct a survey for that, you can ask your friends what foods they like most and tell them about your plan to serve their food. Once you know the food of their choice, start cooking now and deliver their meals before the time of their lunch break. This doing is definitely a great source of income while spending most of your time at home.
